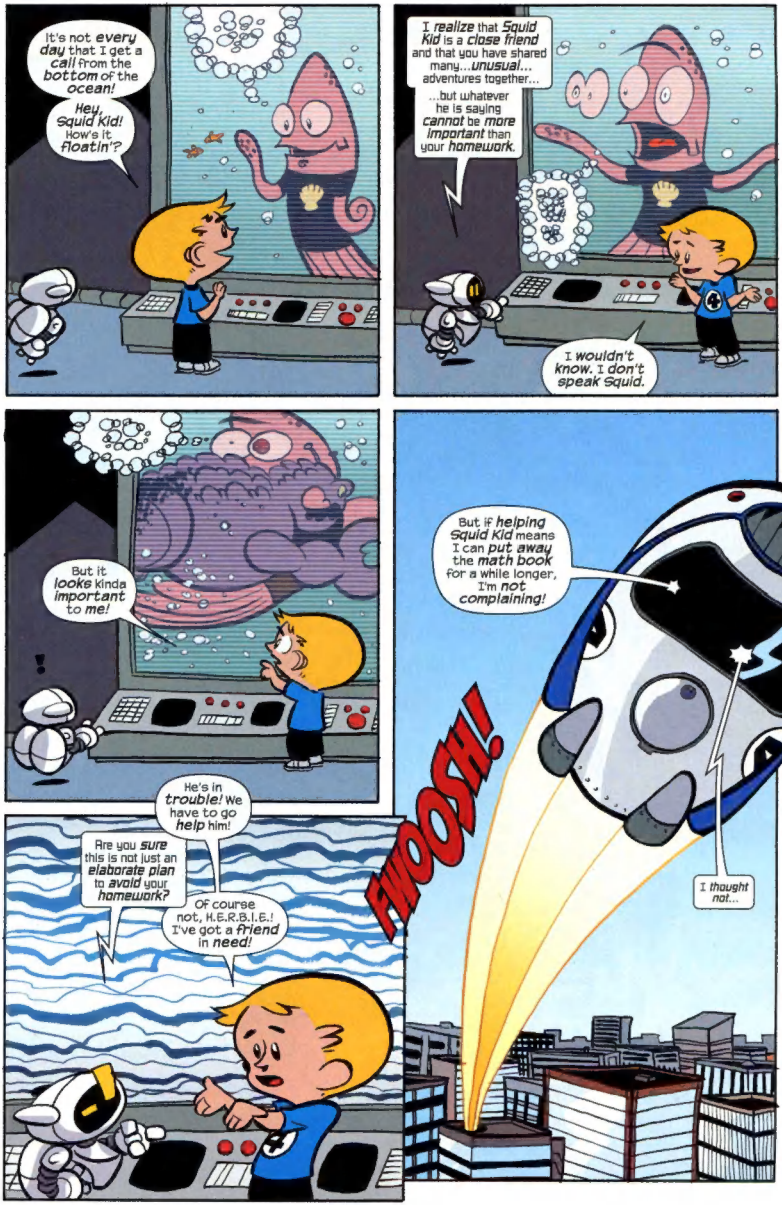
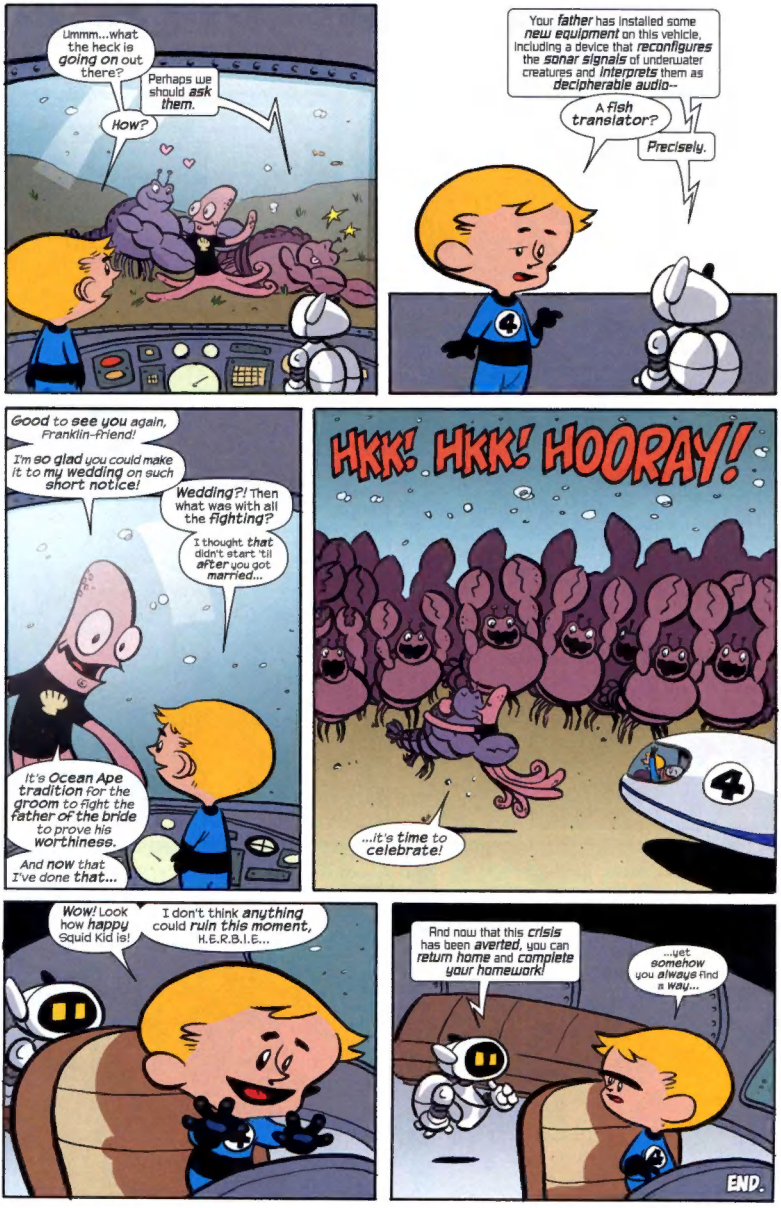
The possibilities of this working are infinitesimal, Franklin.
Well, as long as you don't think there's little chance, we should be fine.
What do we have to do?
We must subdue the enlarged lizard long enough to use the antidote from your father's lab on the creature without harming it.
Perhaps if you took a moment to read the book, it might--
Nah. With this robot, it'll be easy to bring the lizard down.
I just need to look before I--
--leap.
THRAKKADOOM!!
CHOOM!
I must insist that you read this book. The answer to subduing the creature may lie within.
I know my plan can work. All I have to do is get close to it.
RROOARR!
Okay, change of plan.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE!
We wouldn't have to if I had brought along one of Dad's super-gadgets like I usually do! Those always save the day!
But no! You had to feed my ego and let me think that all I needed to win was my stupid--
--feet!
That's it!
H.E.R.B.I.E., get to the net and play keeper!
What about you, Franklin Richards?
Me?
I've got some prehistoric hide to kick!
KICK!
SKREEEEEE!
GOOOOOAALLLLLL!!!!!!
See, Franklin Richards? You are capable of solving problems without your father's inventions.
All it required was some quick thinking and good aim!
Maybe...but next time, I'm not even gonna risk it.
After all, good aim means nothing when you can kick at escape velocity!
END.



It's not every day that I get a call from the bottom of the ocean!
Hey, Squid Kid! How's it floatin'?
I realize that Squid Kid is a close friend and that you have shared many...unusual... adventures together...
...but whatever he is saying cannot be more important than your homework.
I wouldn't know. I don't speak Squid.
But it looks kinda important to me!
But if helping Squid Kid means I can put away the math book for a while longer, I'm not complaining!
FWOOSH!
I thought not...
He's in trouble! We have to go help him!
Are you sure this is not just an elaborate plan to avoid your homework?
Of course not, H.E.R.B.I.E.! I've got a friend in need!



Ummm...what the heck is going on out there?
Perhaps we should ask them.
How?
Your father has installed some new equipment on this vehicle, including a device that reconfigures the sonar signals of underwater creatures and interprets them as decipherable audio--
A fish translator?
Precisely.
Good to see you again, Franklin-friend!
I'm so glad you could make it to my wedding on such short notice!
Wedding?! Then what was with all the fighting?
I thought that didn't start 'til after you got married...
It's Ocean Ape tradition for the groom to fight the father of the bride to prove his worthiness.
And now that I've done that...
HKK! HKK! HOORAY!
...it's time to celebrate!
Wow! Look how happy Squid Kid is!
I don't think anything could ruin this moment, H.E.R.B.I.E...
And now that this crisis has been averted, you can return home and complete your homework!
...yet somehow you always find a way...
END.
